"The planet is in your hands"

"If you could change one thing in the world to combat the climate crisis, what would it be?"

The purpose of this seminar is: to empower students and give them the tools and space to become protagonists in building a sustainable future. Climate education is not just about understanding the problem; It's about finding solutions and turning concern into action.

ActNow Film: Youth Climate Leaders as Agents of Change
https://youtu.be/2A2dfXy-Mqk?si=3EQzpphv5pwzOBlB

Throughout this event, we will explore together how young people can lead the fight against climate change on different fronts:
In education, learning and teaching about sustainability.
In practice, implementing environmental projects in their communities.
And in political participation, helping to shape public policies that reflect a commitment to the environment and future generations.
